DEPARTMENT OF LABOUR

Hon. Humphrey Mitchell announces that two new trade training courses have been approved by the Department of Labour.

At the teachers' Training College at Hamilton, courses are being given to about 30 men who will be trained as instructors and will be available for trade training of members of the Armed Forces after discharge. Nearly all of the 30 are themselves veterans, and are qualified mechanics in one or other of the trades.

While the Dominion Government meets the entire cost of the course, it is being carried out in co-operation with the province of Ontario.

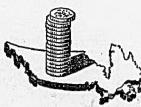

Through arrangements between the Department of Labour and provincial authorities, a series of courses will be given during the present winter season at which instruction will be in cheese and butter making and as dairy men. Each course will run about three months. Already two courses are under way, one at Guelph with 60 men and 4 women in attendance, and a small group at St. Hyacinth. It is expected that over 300 persons will be trained at these courses during this winter.

Courses will be given in Ontario, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Quebec, and those selected for the training will be from the farm.

QUANTITY OF MONEY and volume of credit are matters of high national monetary policy.

Canada's Chartered Banks exist to perform two main services:

1. They receive the savings and other funds of the public, who thus build up bank balances in the form of savings and current accounts.
2. They advance money to communities, enterprises and persons to serve their legitimate needs.

Along with these main functions the banks, through more than 3,000 branches and sub-agencies, render a large number of other important services related to local and national needs—services which have greatly increased as a result of the war.

But the quantity of money in

The Chartered Banks' responsibility, clearly established and regulated by the Bank Act, is in the realm of commercial banking—that is, to receive deposits and to serve the needs of trade and industry.

existence in the country at any given time, and the volume of credit, are matters of high national monetary policy. The nation's own central bank, the Bank of Canada, determines them. The Bank of Canada makes extensive use of the Chartered Banks' facilities in giving effect to these policies.

Wheat Stem Sawfly Again

Last January we drew the attention of our readers to a Dominion Governmental Pest Control Council of Wheat Stem Sawfly. The Director of Entomology, Ottawa, has recently prepared a coloured map which shows the extent of sawfly infestation in the prairie provinces. The areas on the map are very bright; but the prairies rather gloomy. Sawfly is present over an area bounded by a line extending from the Peace River Country approximately through Wainwright, Kamsack, Prince Albert, Edmonton, Calgary and Cardston. Obviously this leaves a comparatively small proportion of our prairie growing area entirely free from infestation.

On the lack of the sawfly map we found a summary of the problem and brief descriptions of control measures. The following statement is made:

"Plants must be made immediately to start sawfly control on infected farms. No farmer who suffered loss in 1942 should delay in starting control without recognizing the problem and taking steps to reduce the loss caused by this insect."

In order to consult the sawfly map and to obtain further information, farmers have only to call on grain buyers in any of the line elevators associated with the work of the Agricultural Department of the North-West Line Elevators Association. Grain buyers also copy the excellent bulletin, written by C. C. W. Pierstot, to which reference was made in our January article.

For further information, go to the Dominion Entomological Laboratory at Lethbridge, Saskatoon or Brandon; or to the Department of Agriculture, Edmonton, Regina or Winnipeg.

Films For Education

THERE ARE FEW COMMUNITIES in Canada which are without motion picture theatres, and this form of entertainment is an accepted part of the life of these times. Within the memory of most of us, the production of moving pictures has shown great development, and there is a vast difference between the early silent pictures, and the finished productions which we see today. While the screen is considered to be primarily a medium of entertainment, there has been, in recent years, a growing realization of its value in education, and also for the spreading of propaganda. Many schools in Canada use motion pictures in their classes, and there are now fine libraries of educational films available for this purpose at various centres in the Dominion.

Films Are Used For Propaganda

The war has given impetus to the use of films for propaganda purposes. The Germans were quick to seize on this method of spreading their doctrines abroad. They also used motion pictures in attempts to terrorize countries into submission in the early days of the war, by circulating films showing Nazi bombing and invasion tactics. Canada, Great Britain, the United States and Russia have used moving pictures to acquaint their people with the extent of their war efforts, and also for educating them in regard to the needs of their countries in wartime. In addition, motion picture photographers have been present on many of the battle fronts and they have made some interesting and remarkable films, some of which are included in the newsreels here. The National Film Board in Canada has expanded greatly in recent years and it has produced a number of fine motion pictures dealing with many aspects of life in Canada at this time.

Germans Spread Ideas in Europe

It has been suggested that films might prove to be a powerful factor in countering the effect of Nazi propaganda on the minds of the people in Occupied Europe. For many months now these people have been bombarded with German ideology and while it is known that their methods have been in no measure as effective as was intended, it will in many instances have left a distorted outlook which will have to be corrected. Mr. Charles Francis Coe, an American motion picture company executive, who visited Canada recently, expressed the opinion that films might be used successfully in this connection. He pointed out that motion pictures created for entertainment, but showing "that there is a spot where decency prevails, where patriotism is not a gesture, and where the valuable things of life flow from the man himself" as an entity unto himself, not from a State welded by the grimy, bloodied hands of a few dictators," might prove of great value in dealing with this problem.

Forgery Proof

Documents Written On Clay Tablets In Early Days

In Mesopotamia, 3,000 years before Christ, official and legal red tape was highly developed. Then as now people had to sign on the dotted line. Although the ancient Near East claims the earliest known systems of writing, its masses remained illiterate. Documents were written on clay tablets by professional scribes but "John Henry's" signature was personally imprinted on the soft clay by means of a seal. The seal was usually in the form of a small stone cylinder, fore-runner of the rotary printing machine. It was owned and worn by the signatory who was protected against forgery by the variety and intricacy of its design. The Royal Ontario Museum has recently put on display a fine collection of these ancient seals.

Madame Tussaud's Waxworks Still Big Attraction For London Visitors

The death of J. T. Tussaud came at a moment when the famous wax-works exhibition which bears his name was experiencing a sort of renaissance. Not only is it still as popular as ever with London youngsters and provincial visitors, but it is about the first place for which American warriors on leave in London make a bee-line. The popularity of Madame Tussaud's seems, in fact, to be as perennial as the detective thriller. It was J. T. Tussaud's great-grandmother who went to London after the French Revolution, who founded the famous wax-works show-place in Marylebone Road. The legend was that she had been compelled to make models in wax of the more famous heads that fell on the guillotine. During his lifetime the late Mr. Tussaud added more than a thousand models to the show, which is perhaps now the only survivor of its kind in Britain. The Chamber of Horrors was the only part of the exhibition that survived a disastrous fire some years ago.

Beau Jonathan

CHAPTER XII.

FARQUHAR removed his rapier on the table and received his due share of velvet waistcoat. The doublet followed, then the stock about his throat and, finally, even the long curled wig. Then Farquhar took up his weapon and advanced toward Jonathan. Their points touched with a metallic ringing sound.

A few cautious testings of the guards, then Lord Farquhar essayed the first attack. But in mid-thrust the nobleman slipped on the smooth floor. Jonathan sprang to his feet and about to step back to allow his enemy to recover, caught the set gleam in Farquhar's eye barely to time. His stilled sword swerved to the left, deftly avoiding the blow aimed at him from his lordship's stumbling position. Farquhar's rapier still emptily between Jonathan's arm pit and ribs but the latter's blade sliced through the skin and flesh of his lord's left shoulder.

"First blood, my lord Farquhar!" he reminded grimly.

"A moment's rest, Master Hale?" Farquhar begged, "I find my breath growing short."

Jonathan nodded his acceptance of the recess. Farquhar said, "You gain nothing if you stay me, Hale. Remember the letter I sent to Denys."

"I have not forgotten," said Jonathan. "Neither do I forget that I have sworn to avenge Denys. Murder must be punished, Farquhar."

FARQUHAR, his breath recovered, lifted his sword, slid it left hand the length of the blade and flexed the hilt. "I have not long as we call it to us once more."

"With that he took his stance, but instead of advancing, as Jonathan expected, the tall, slender man swiftly toward the door. The sword hummed in a terrible arc, lashing sideways and across the face of Matt Tucker.

"Outside! Davis!" cried Farquhar, hearing footfalls on the stairs in charge of Jonathan. "Summon help! Hurry—before it is too late—"

The servant hurried himself over the fallen Tucker, jerked open the door and fled into the hall. Jonathan was helpless to stop him, for Farquhar now saw that his master, if he could stay on his feet a bit longer, was fighting like a madman, forcing Jonathan to give ground for the first time.

"Jonathan! Jonathan shouted. "Bar the door! Let no one in until I am finished with this devil!"

The girl darted forward, slamming the door and turning the key. Tucker, blood streaming into his eyes, staggered to his feet to help her clank the heavy door, shouting from an iron stand in the frame of the doorway. A moment later, fast-hammered on the panels and the thud of wood against wood echoed throughout the room to blend with the roar of steel and stone.

The furious onslaught of Farquhar was the extreme test of Jonathan's swordsmanship. Jonathan's sword was everywhere but, even so, he was unable to block each blow he received. Farquhar's rapier whipped in, bladed side about the heart, then out, red to half its length.

"You heard, gentlemen?" Jonathan said, nodding his head. "The killer is in this room?"

"Yes," stammered Chelsea. "Yes—but—"

"You heard, gentlemen?" Jonathan asked again. "Farquhar has confessed that he ordered Denys killed and that Davis has named the murderer of his wife."

"Farquhar has told his secret," said Chelsea, nodding heavily. "And—" Jonathan said, "the killer is in this room?"

"Yes," stammered Chelsea. "Yes—but—"

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

By

H. G. L. Strange

A few years ago, when certain areas of the South-ern Prairies suffered from successive year of drought, many said our wheat lands were 'washed up', that never again would they produce normal crops. This sad condition, they said, was caused by the farmers improvident methods of 'soil mining' the land, by the continual growing of wheat, and so the fertility of the soil, it was claimed had been lost.

During these years, I, for one was bold enough to point that this was all great nonsense—that the fertility of the soil had then been lost, and that when the rains came again normal crops did later occur, as we know.

Additional confirmation of the fact that land will continue to produce beautiful crops is shown by the recent statement of Sir John Russell, of the Rothamsted Experimental Station, England, in speaking of the famous broadbalk field which has been seen for a hundred straight years to wheat without manure or fertilizer. Last year, 1942, the 99th wheat crop on this field yielded 26½ bushels to the acre.

This indicates that if we use reasonable care with our land, to prevent soil blowing and water erosion as much as possible, we can continue perhaps indefinitely to produce good wheat crops on our prairie lands.

Gasoline

Experts have proved the average car getting 18 miles to the gallon at 30 miles an hour only gets 12.6 at 60. So hit a happy medium by not exceeding 40. It's safer too and helps you keep your 50/50 pledge. Our Fighting Forces need the gasoline. See that they get it by watching your speedometer. REMEMBER: The slower you drive, the more you save!
